

HELBARD

Swiss, last third of the 17th century, so-called "Sempacher helbard".

Single-edged blade-type tip, transitioning into the beaked hook; two marks: circular area symmetrically divided by eight lines, and pointed oval with two diagonal crosses. Long rectangular blade with straight edge, rounded shaft guide, two parrying spikes at the base. Two langets. Original octagonal shaft, ferrule with spike.

L 228 cm.
